TOP FUNDS WE COMPETE AGAINST

TD Canadian Equity	→ RBC Canadian Equity
TD Balanced Growth	→ RBC Balanced Fund
TD Dividend Income	→ RBC Canadian Dividend
TD US Equity	→ RBC US Equity
TD Monthly Income	→ RBC Monthly Income

💬 KEY TALKING POINTS VS. TD

→RBC offers deeper active management capabilities with a proven track record across Canadian equity and fixed income, where TD leans heavily on passive/index strategies.

→RBC Canadian Dividend Fund has outperformed TD Dividend Income over 3yr and 5yr periods on a risk-adjusted basis.

→RBC provides a broader suite of managed solutions (PH&N, BlueBay) for clients who want institutional-quality fixed income — an area where TD has limited offerings.

Competitor Insights

TD Asset Management

TD Asset Management Inc.

AUM: $428B (Canada)

Subsidiary of TD Bank Group. Full-service asset manager offering mutual funds, ETFs, and managed portfolios. Significant lean toward passive/index strategies with limited active management depth.

THEIR STRENGTHS

- Strong brand recognition in low-cost investing
- Large branch network drives steady lead flow to advisors
- Competitive ETF lineup (TD One-Click ETF Portfolios)
- Epoch Investment Partners sub-advisory for US equity

THEIR WEAKNESSES

- Limited depth in active management — heavily index-reliant
- Weak fixed income capabilities vs. institutional players
- No equivalent to PH&N or BlueBay for bond-focused clients
- Comfort Portfolio series has higher MERs than positioning suggests

KEY TALKING POINTS — RBC VS. TD ASSET MANAGEMENT

→ Active management edge: TD has shifted heavily toward passive/index. For clients who want proven alpha generation, RBC's equity and fixed income teams have stronger long-term track records across multiple cycles.

→ Fixed income is a clear win: PH&N and BlueBay give RBC institutional-grade fixed income capabilities. This is TD's biggest gap — for any client with meaningful bond exposure, RBC is the stronger home.

→ Fees are competitive or better: Despite common perception, RBC MERs are lower than TD in most core categories (Canadian equity, balanced, fixed income). The "low-cost" TD brand doesn't hold up in a direct comparison.

→ Scale & breadth: RBC GAM manages $580B — the largest asset manager in Canada — giving clients access to deeper research teams, broader mandates, and solutions TD simply can't match.

→ When they push back: Acknowledge TD's strength in passive/low-cost ETFs. Then pivot — "For the portion of a portfolio that benefits from active management, especially in fixed income and Canadian equity, RBC has a proven edge."
